

NICK CUMMINS - 'THE HONEY BADGER'

Rugby Union star and Aussie News Today Anchorman

Nick Cummins, AKA The Honey Badger, is a well-known Rugby Union footballer, and Australian personality born the north coast of New South Wales and raised in Queensland.

Cummins drew inspiration from the fierce nature of the honey badger and adopted the animal's ferocity on the rugby field, resulting in his nickname 'The Honey Badger'.

Now taking a break from the game following a celebrated 15 Test match career with the Australian Wallabies, Cummins is a brand ambassador, guest speaker and TV personality known for his flamboyant, never-say-die approach to life. A true outdoorsman, Nick loves heading on adventures 'out bush' and getting amongst the wildlife.

